„Marina has easily found the diversity in emotion, softness and flexibility of interpretive ways in presenting the exact music content. She started from a desire and from her possibility to present the singing of verses in the sounds that happens and also in the opposite direction, so listening to this CD finally leads to the transformation of sounds into verses.”

From the review by Andrea Talmelli of the CD „di suoni in versi“ (2018)
by Marina Popadić

“It is a remarkable interpretation of Marina Popadić who, in addition to being a refined pianist, is also a poet of exceptional intensity, which is best understood in the last three compositions of this CD, which have verses of very interesting lyrics.”

"I listened to this CD with joy and admiration. Marina Popadić performs compositions by Talmelli with deep emotion and sophisticated technique. She can convey the character of each piece to the listener. It fully displays the character and message of contemporary music. Every compliment for this. The fact that Marina also wrote poems for some of the compositions allows her to go deeper into interpreting the music content."

Wilhelm Ohmen

“On this beautiful CD by Talmelli, who offers us 11 compositions for solo piano, written over 40 years and inspired by songs or stories, some songs by the same Popadić, as well as works by Gianni D’Elia, Luigi Faroldi, Kokaiashi Issa, Laura Mancinelli, Eveline Schaz, Hermann Hesse. The dates of some compositions are not marked, but stylistic homogeneity, a predisposition to translate sounds, symbols, poetic images into sounds, and a fantasy charge, is noticeable. At the same time, a deep connection with poetic verse is noticeable. The poetic texts are presented in a booklet contained in the CD, and some are very beautiful lyrics, such as those of Popadić, who is also a pianist and interpreter of refined sensibility on this CD.”
